"It's disappointing, because it took EPA 16 years to develop a cleanup plan and we were hopeful we were moving into the cleanup phase now," Sallinger said. "This feels like a big step backwards. It weakens the plan."

do you really want to throw away 16 years worth of planning?

is the so called "deadly pollutants" still unsafe? just because they are less dangerous than we thought does not mean it can't do harm.

1. How and why do people keep using these deadly cancer causing chemicals and sites
3. What can we do to stop, prevent, and reduce the cause
2. How do these sites make a negative impact on our portland harbor community
